Levi Huddleston has worked as a sound technician for me for the past two years at Harding University in Searcy, Arkansas. He has operated sound for several university productions, assisted in setup and has great organizational skills.

Levi is punctual, pleasant to work with, and proficient in a basic knowledge of audio production, especially in the area of live mixing. He completed a course in audio production last semester, under my tutelage at Harding University.

Levi was also awarded with a Theatre Department award for audio production for the year this past school year. He is the first student to be recognized with such an award in the area of audio production.

If I can provide further information or be of further service, please feel free to contact me.
